Most people view forestry as a part time job, a means of extra income, a hobby, or in the extreme even a play toy. The reason for this is obvious enough; most of us do not own a sufficient amount of timber to make it a full time position even if he wanted to. We all realize the importance of forest products to the nation's economy. But, when we look at the role of the forest industry in our country, what do we see? Look at the over-all picture, not just a single man's woodlot. Can we safely say that the forestry industry will maintain itself for as long as trees continue to grow? What is the present and future outlook?

In 1950 almost half of the labor force, in Appomattox County, was employed in forestry or related fields. If the forest resources would become depleted, where would these men go and what would they do? Most of them would probably move out of the county, if this condition persisted for a period of time under the present county facilities for employment. One solution would be to protect and help our present forest land. By this we mean, encourage sound forest management practices and practice closer utilization during logging operations. Maintain a proper balance between cutting and planting new stands.

Appomattox has 156,335 acres of forest land, which nonunsts to 70.9% of the total land area.

The state forest owns and manages 15,000 acres of this, which provides jobs for many of the county's citizens. This leaves approximately 140,000 acres of forest land which are privately owned.

In comparison, the average of all the counties in the state is 61% forested out of the total land area. The estimated net sawtimber volume in Appomattox is 265 million board feet, of which about half is oaks and other hardwoods; 20% is in poplar and other soft hardwoods; and 30% in pine and other softwoods. Pine includes shortleaf and loblolly pine. Virginia pine, which amounts to about 70% of all pine in Appomattox, is listed under "other softwoods" along with red cedar.

The estimated total annual sawtimber cut in Appomattox is about 16 million board feet, plus 53,000 cords of pulpwood. These figures include all species. Appomattox is cutting more than they are growing back. The state as a whole has more timber growing into merchandable size than they are cutting. However, low quality hardwood is increasing considerably according for the growth and our pine volume is decreasing.

Many counties are cutting more every year than is growing back into merchantable size. This may eventually endanger the jobs of their labor force and decrease the flow of money in the county. With the size of the forest area involved and the importance of it to the county, a program can and should be worked out which will improve this situation. Now is the time to plan before a full scale program is in order, and now while it will take less expense and effort on our part.

Race Date Set At Bristol Speedway

BRISTOL, Tenn., March 24 — Marvin Panch, driving a 1962 Dodge, and Junior Johnson in a 1962 Pontiac, are the first two entries for the Second Annual "Volunteer 500" at the Bristol International Speedway on Sunday, April 29.

Panch, a resident of Daytona Beach, Fla., and driving for Bob Osiecki of Charlotte, N. C., will be making his first appearance at the Bristol International Speedway while Johnson, who drives this half-mileo val like he owns it, will be making his third appearance in Bristol and is one of the favorites among the Bristol racing clan.

Panch and Johnson were signed by Larry Carrier, President of the Bristol International Speedway, and Track Director Hal Hamrick.

Panch and Johnson have been among the top Grand National drivers over the past few years and have several victories under their belts.

President Carrier has predicted a faster and more exciti g race this year. "We had 25,000 fans at the first race last year and we are expecting another standing room only crown again this year," Carrier said.

Only five weeks remain before the 500-lap, 250-mile grind is underway.
